

Sunset big ideas for small spaces

Featuring Jojo's Notebook by JoAnne Liebeler

An architect who works out of her garage designed this banquette as a space-efficient seating area for clients as well as a homework table for her children. Cork floors add warmth and color to the once-utilitarian space.

A small, stand-alone home office is separated from the rest of the house by a brilliant flower garden. Large windows and architectural echoes (in this case, the sloping walls) unite the two spaces.
